BULLET PUTS STOP TO HAZING.
Iowa College Boy Uses Revolver and Wounds Fellow Student
Ames, Iowa, March 28.—In a melee resulting from an attempt to "stretch" Student R. Campbell of Webster City at the Iowa State College, J. A. Lawrence of Muscatine was shot. "Stretching" is a form of hazing, and consists in teasing the subject in the air while holding his arms and legs. Campbell resisted and retreated to his room, where he kept the crowd of students at bay with a revolver. One of the boys entered the room through a window and clamped Campbell from behind. In the melee which followed the revolver was discharged, the bullet striking Lawrence in the breast, but not inflicting a dangerous wound. No arrest will be made. Campbell is attending classes, but has been expelled from his boarding club, of which both were members.

LORD ROBERTS' SUCCESSOR
King Edward's Brother to Become Head of the British Army.
Queen Victoria's long cherished wish that her son be made commander in chief of the British army is about to be fulfilled, although she was unable to bring it about during her lifetime. For some time there have been rumors that Lord Roberts wished to retire. Now it is announced that this rumor is correct and that the hero of Kandahar is to retire in April and that he will be succeeded by the Duke of Connaught, King Edward's only remaining brother.

THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

Cambridge, the late Queen Victoria was anxious that her son, the Duke of Connaught, should succeed to the command of the army. When her plans were defeated and the appointment of Lord Wolseley became necessary, she contented herself with the thought that at least her son could succeed Lord Wolseley. But Lord Roberts' capture of Cronje and the resulting wave of popular enthusiasm and the equally strong conviction that the war office must be reformed again defeated the queen's wishes, and Lord Roberts was made commander in chief.

But the abrupt removal of General Buller by Lord Roberts caused a revolution in feeling, and for the first time in his life the beloved "Bobby" heard hisses mingled with the cheers sent up in his honor whenever he appeared in public. That was a bitter experience to a man so fond of popularity and is said to be one of the causes of his intention to resign. Another is his discovery that he is quite unable to cut the red tape that is bound so tightly around the war office by its civilian force. And so at last the Duke of Connaught is to have his long looked for chance. He is a clever, kindly and popular man, who has the reputation of being a really good soldier, quite aside from his royal prestige. The duke's personality is thought to be great enough to overcome any popular feeling that a more brilliant, energetic and forceful man should be placed at the head of the army.

France, where she has succeeded in stirring up the British embassy to such a pitch by her speeches that it protested to the French foreign office. At a public meeting held to advance the candidacy of Edward Archdeacon, who is of Irish descent and a Nationalist candidate for the French chamber of deputies, Miss Gonne denounced the parliamentary system both of France and England. She caused great excitement by saying that the Irish could put up a better fight against England than have even the Boers. She appealed to the ancient Irish-French families and asked them to join a Franco-Irish brigade.
